THE Provisional Committee are now enabled to announce, for the information of the public, that the Colonial Government has intimated a willingness to EXTEND THE GUARANTEE OF A MINIMUM RATE OF INTEREST OF FIVE PER CENT. PER ANNUM TO THE TERM OF TWENTY-FIVE YEARS. And that this rate of interest will be payable HALF YEARLY ON ALL SUMS ACTUALLY EXPENDED, NOT ONLY IN CARRYING OUT THE WORKS, BUT ALSO IN THE SURVEYS AND OTHER PRELIMINARY MEASURES NECESSARY FOR THE COMMENCEMENT OF THE UNDERTAKING.

The Provisional Committee have also the gratification of being enabled to state, that they have been furnished with a copy of a Survey, made in the year 1830, by the Surveyor General's Department, of a line of road from the City of Sydney to the Towns of Parramatta and Liverpool, which Sir Thomas Mitchell considers to be in the most eligible direction for carrying the Railway towards the interior. Concurring in opinion with the Surveyor-General, they have directed the Engineer of the Company immediately to commence the making of such further examinations and surveys of this portion of the line as will enable him to prepare the plans which are necessary before the Act of Incorporation can be obtained.

They have further to intimate that the Government has, upon their application, sanctioned the employment of an Officer of the Surveyor-General's Department to ascertain by survey the most eligible route for ascending the table land of Argyle.

Measures will also be adopted for having a survey made of the line best fitted for opening up railway communication between Parramatta and Windsor.

Applications for shares, in the prescribed form, may be made at the Office of the Company, Sydney; or to the Honorary Agents in the Country Districts, from whom blank forms of application can be obtained.

FINAL DRAWING.

BANK OF AUSTRALIA PARTITION.

MR. SAMUEL LYONS hastens to announce that the Prospectus of the Properties to be divided, containing in detail every lot in the Partition, is now ready for issue; and from the very limited number of Tickets to be disposed of in Sydney, Mr. Lyons would urge upon the public an early application in order to prevent disappointment.

Sydney, February 23. 3292

FINAL PARTITION OF THE BANK OF AUSTRALIA PROPERTIES.

THE undersigned will be glad to supply Tickets in the above. Price—Five Guineas each.

Purchasers of tickets will be entitled to a Copy of the Schedule showing the whole of the lots to be drawn for, and every explanation and information will be given on application.

The immense value of the properties to be drawn for, coupled with the very small number of tickets issued, renders this a most advantageous speculation. A reference to the Schedule will show that even the smallest lots are almost equivalent in value to the price of the ticket, whilst the bulk of them are infinitely beyond it,—varying up to Two Thousand Pounds.

Early application is necessary, as the whole number of tickets for the Middle District, Hobart Town, and New Zealand, is only 2812, many of which are already disposed of.

THOMAS S. MORT, Auctioneer.

The undersigned respectfully desire to inform the Australian public, that they have bought the entire interest and stock of the above publication, which they have decided on offering for sale at the lowest price consistent with profit. It is almost unnecessary to remark that the utility of the work is conclusively established from the fact of the rapid sale of the whole of the very large impression of the first edition; indeed every individual connected with the colony by property, whether Settler, Banker, Merchant, or Trader, should be in possession of a copy.

HASTIE'S PATENT FLOUR MILL, ENROLLED JANUARY, 1848

THE object of this invention is to simplify the application of steam power to turn certain mills or machines, by making the axis of the crank of the steam engine serve also for the axis of the mill or machine, which axis may be either vertical or horizontal according to the construction of the mill or machine.

The cheapness and simplicity of this contrivance recommends itself to the attention of all parties who may be contemplating the erection of a work of this description. It is peculiarly adapted for the interior, being less liable to get out of order than the more complicated machinery required in the ordinary construction of mills. A drawing of the mill, and full particulars, to be had of

Mr. H. W. HAMILTON, Agent for the Patentee, 650, George-street,

Who will be happy to treat for the supply of one or more of the above machines. 3537

A single trial of which will satisfy the most SCEPTICAL of their SUPERIORITY.

Allowances made to WHOLESALE purchasers.

HOCKIN'S PREPARATION OF SEIDLITZ, in one bottle, will keep in every situation. It is solid Salt of a natural spring, and like it, tasteless. The dose can be apportioned to suit all ages and constitutions; a full dose acts as a medicine; a smaller forms a refreshing and pleasant drink, consequently it is used by surgeons for making the saline draught. Hockin's Patent Preparation does not (like the articles called Seidlitz powders) become a liquid in damp places, but on the contrary it is rendered more firm, and contains the necessary salt to feed the blood and system. It is a valuable family medicine, being taken as freely by children as adults, and cannot disagree with or weaken the stomach in any climate. In bottles. CHAS. LAW INTELLIGENCE.

SUPREME COURT.—Wednesday.

INSOLVENCY.

Before His Honor Sir Alfred Stephen.

William Graham, Esq., was sworn in a magistrate of the territory before his Honor, at the opening of the Court.

IN THE ESTATE OF ABRAHAM AND SAUL LYONS.

The Chief Commissioner moved that six months further time be allowed for the filing of the plan of distribution herein, on the ground set forth in an affidavit, that no assets had yet been received, and that the assignee had expectation that some would be obtained within that period.—Order granted.

BARRETT v. TOOTH.

The Chief Commissioner stated that Barrett some two months since had compulsorily sequestrated the estate of Tooth, but had never taken out the order absolute granted, nor had any steps been taken by him or by any other creditors under the order; he now therefore moved—finding that Barrett had lodged in his office a document to the effect that his claim against Tooth had been settled—that the petition and order thereon be discharged.

His Honor, expressed some doubt whether the Court could make such an order, but finding that the orders had been made before in estates similarly situated, made the order in the terms of the motion.

BICKNELL v. RAVENSCROFT.

Mr. Broadhurst moved to make absolute an order calling upon the defendant to show cause why his estate should not be sequestrated. The motion was made simply upon the return of the Sheriff to the writ of summons, viz., that it had been personally served upon the defendant. It being objected that it was the practice of the Court, in similar motions to move upon the production of an affidavit of personal service,

His Honor said, upon looking to the terms of the summons, and regarding the duty of the Sheriff, he did not see why (though the practice had been to the contrary) the motion should not succeed upon the return of the Sheriff to the writ of summons. An order was made accordingly.

His Honor also heard several motions in the common law jurisdiction, but no points of importance were raised.

CONFIRMATION OF CERTIFICATES.

The Chief Commissioner moved the confirmation of the certificates of discharge granted to John Henry Fidden, William John Bennison, and Samuel Jenner. Allowed.

PLAN OF DISTRIBUTION.

The Chief Commissioner moved the confirmation of the plan of distribution filed in the estate of Thomas Rowley, showing a first dividend of 9s. 5½d. in the pound. Allowed.

IN RE ROBERT SPARROW BRIGGS.

Mr. Clark Irving was appointed Official Assignee to the above estate, in the room of Mr. Hutchinson Bell, deceased.

DOMESTIC INTELLIGENCE.

INSOLVENT COURT.

Wednesday.

Before W. H. Kerr, Esq., Chief Commissioner of Insolvent Estates.

In the estate of Richard Windeyer, deceased, a special meeting was held, when a claim was proved by the executors of John Cobb, deceased, for £*92 16s. 10d.

MEETINGS TO MORROW.

In the estate of John Goodwin, a single meeting, at half-past 10.

In the estate of Robert Cassells, a second meeting, at half-past 11.

In the estate of Alexander Smal l, an adjourned certificate meeting, at noon.

NEW INSOLVENT.

Frederick Christian Luther, of the Hermitage at the Oaks. Debts, £394 11s. Assets—personal property, £41; debts due, (including £130, bad and doubtful), £283 19s. 5d. Balance deficiency, £69 11s. 7d. Official assignee, Mr. John Morris.

CITY COUNCIL.

Wednesday, February 28.

Present: Alderman Thurlow, in the chair, Aldermen Broughton, Allen, Fisher, Brown, and Egan; Councillors Moir, Josephson, Driver, Neale, May, M'Donald, Ryan, Paton, Board, Moore, Hill, Wilshire, Wilkie, Thornton, Titterton, and Lingard.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the Town Clerk.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. Paton wished to know what was the cause of the absence of the Mayor. He was paid £600 a year for his attendance, and he thought it very unfair and very improper that he did not attend.

Mr. Josephson stated that it had on a former occasion been mooted whether the minutes of the Council were minutes until signed. The chairman declined to sign them, and he considered they were not enabled to go on to business until the minutes were signed by the Mayor.

Alderman Thurlow said, the minutes of the last meeting that had just been read were the minutes of a meeting over which he had not presided, and, therefore, he did not consider himself called upon to sign them. He ruled that it was competent for the Council to proceed to business without the minutes being signed.

FINANCIAL ESTIMATE.—WATER WORKS.

The discussion on the amount to be placed on the estimates for the purpose of laying down water-pipes, &c, was resumed.

Mr. Wilshire moved as an amendment on the original motion, that the sum of £5000 be placed on the estimates for the year 1849, for laying down water-pipes, &c., such sum, or such part of such sum, as might be from time to time required to be raised by debentures. He did not object to the sum of £5000 being expended on the water works, but he did object to borrowing any larger sum of money than was required, either by debentures or in any other way. He did not wish money to be voted to be spent as the water committee thought fit, or, as the chairman of the water committee said at the last meeting, whether it was required or not. His opinion was, that the sum of £5000 might be advantageously expended on the water works, but they had a revenue of £2000 derivable from the water to go to that sum.

Alderman Fisher saw nothing objectionable in the amendment, and should therefore be happy to second it. He did not think the Council ought to hesitate to vote this sum for a work so important. The Councillor who spoke last must have misunderstood what he (Mr. Fisher) said at the last meeting, as most certainly he never contemplated spending any of the moneys thus proposed to be raised without the vote of the Council; nor did he wish to raise more money by debentures than was absolutely required. All he wished was, that the Council would put such a sum on the estimates as would enable the Water Committee to recommend what works ought to be done, and then it would be for the Council to say whether they should be done or not. He wished to set himself right on this question; for he did not want to lay himself open, as the last Chairman of the Water Committee had done, of acting in the face of the vote of the Council. Whatever vote the Council might come to, either as to the expenditure of the money, or how it should be raised, he, as one of the Water Committee, should respect that vote. He did not think that permanent works, such as laying the main pipes of the city, ought to be paid for out of present rates. Many streets of the city were not benefitted by the water-pipes at all, and it was not just to tax them.

Alderman Allen should quite agree with the Alderman for Cook Ward in his conclusion if his premises were correct. But, in fact, the citizens had never yet been taxed one farthing for water. It was quite true that the main pipes ought not to be paid for out of present rates, but when the 12 inch pipe in Liverpool-street was laid down, there was a balance of £1000 at the credit of the Water Committee, besides the £1100 raised by debentures, for water, but which had been spent in general city works, not one of which was permanent. When he retired from the Water Committee there was upwards of £1000 at its credit, and at the commencement of the present year £324 3s. 3d. It was indeed said that the water should pay its share in the cost of the machinery of the Council, but even this it could do if called on to do so with the £1100 raised by debentures, which had been misappropriated.

Mr. Moir objected to having distinct funds for distinct works. He thought all works ought to be paid for out of one general fund, although the accounts from each work might be kept distinct. He should move that the sum of £5000 be placed on the estimates, to be raised if required by debentures, and to be spent from time to time as the Council might direct.

Alderman Fisher seconded the amendment.

The original motion and the first amendment having been withdrawn, Mr. Moir's amendment was carried.

PRINTING RECORDS.

Alderman Allen moved that the sum of £120 be placed on the Estimates for printing the votes and proceedings and by-laws of the Council, and towards forming a library.

Mr. Moir wished to know what progress had been made in forming a library.

Alderman Broughton stated that the present library consisted of three sets of Callaghan's Acts.

Mr. Moir thought it was quite idle to tax the citizens for a library, in order that the officers of the Council might amuse themselves in their offices by reading novels.

The motion was carried.

PRINTING.

Alderman Allen moved that a sum of £130 be placed on the Estimates for general printing.

Alderman Egan seconded the motion.

Mr. Moir thought the sum a large one—many summonses or the Council and Committees ought not to be printed. There were hands enough to do without so much printing. He should move as an amendment that the sum be reduced to £100.

The amendment was withdrawn, and the original motion passed.

STATIONERY.

Alderman Allen moved that the sum of £60 be placed on the paper for stationery.

Mr. Moir wished to know if the term stationery included pens and paper.

Mr. Titterton: Yes! and Valentines too.

The vote was carried.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING.

Alderman Allen moved that the sum of £70 be appropriated for advertising in the newspapers. The sum spent last year was £87, but now there were less newspapers, and less money would be required.

Mr. Moir thought the sum too large.

Vote carried.

ELECTIONS.

Alderman Allen moved that the sum of £35 be appropriated to defray the expense of elections.

Carried.

RENT.

Alderman Allen moved that the sum of £180 be placed on the estimates to pay the rent of the Council Chambers.

Carried.

LAW EXPENSES.

Alderman Allen moved that the item of law expenses should stand over till the City Solicitor's salary was reported upon by the Select Committee.

LIGHTING THE CITY.

Alderman Allen moved that the sum of £589 15s. be placed on the estimates for lighting the city. He should leave the question to the Council without comment.

Mr. Jenkins wished to know how this money was to be raised; if out of the city rate, which would involve those who received no benefit from the light as well as those who did, he should oppose it.

Alderman Fisher thought the Councillor had misunderstood the object of the Finance Committee. It was impossible for them to say what sum might be raised by a lighting rate, but they must make good the contract they had already entered into with the Gas Company, however they might think fit to break faith with that Company in the later contract which they had proposed to them. The only thing he feared in this vote was that it might shut them out from any more extensive vote that might be required.

Mr. Titterton supported the motion, but thought that the sum was far too small. It was quite time the city was lighted up, and he considered ten times the amount would be well spent for such a purpose. The people of the suburbs derived as much advantage from the city being lighted as those within the city.

Mr. Wilshire thought the Council were not in a position to consider the vote.

Item postponed.

FUEL AND LIGHT.

Alderman Allen moved that the sum of £10 be appropriated for fuel and light.

Carried.

COMMISSION ON SALES.

Alderman Allen moved that the sum of £61 13s. 11d. be appropriated for the payment of commission on the sale of city properties.

Carried.

INTEREST ON DEBENTURES.

Alderman Allen moved that the sum of £66 be appropriated for the payment of interest on debentures.

Carried.

VALUATION OF CITY PROPERTY.

Alderman Allen moved that the sum of £49 19s. 9d. be appropriated for the payment of the expense of the valuation of the city.

Carried.

DEBENTURES.

Alderman Allen moved that the sum of £1100 be placed on the estimates for the payment of debentures that may fall due in the year 1849.

Carried.

Alderman Allen then moved that the further consideration of the financial estimate be postponed till the Report of the Financial Committee touching the salary of the City Solicitor be brought up.

Carried.

TENDERS.

Alderman Egan moved that all tenders called for by the Council, and now in the hands of the Town Clerk, be opened, and considered by the Council, before proceeding to any other business.

Mr. Jenkins seconded the motion.

Alderman Broughton explained to those gentlemen who seemed to be so anxious to bring the tender system into disrepute, that the only reason the tenders had not been opened before was that there were no funds in hand to defray the expense.

The motion was carried

Mr. Driver moved that the tenders be read.

Mr. Jenkins seconded the motion.

The consideration of the tenders was ultimately referred to a select committee for their recommendation.

REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE.

Mr. Moore moved, that the Town Clerk be instructed by this Council to prepare and have published in the usual Sydney newspapers, as soon as possible, for the general information of the citizens, the several amounts of income and expenditure hereinafter mentioned from the first formation of the Council to the 31st December, 1848:—

1st. The amount of rates due and collected in each ward separately.

2nd. The amount of all rents and revenues due and received for the Markets, Market Wharf, water, fines, licenses, building fees, and otherwise, each amount separately.

3rd. The amount of money expended in each ward of the city separately, for repairs, improvements, laying down water pipes, lighting and otherwise.

4th. The amount of all moneys paid as salaries to Mayor, officers, and servants of the Corporation.

5th. The amount paid for the repairs of tunnel shafts, dam, and otherwise outside the boundaries of the city.

6th. The amount paid for rent, stationery, newspapers, printing, and any other item of expense, each amount separately.

Mr. Neale seconded the motion.

Mr. Wilshire did not see the slightest use in publishing this information, as any councillor or any citizen might, obtain the information from the Town Clerk's office.

Mr. Josephson thought all the information required would be found in the report to be brought up by the Committee of Enquiry, moved for by Alderman Thurlow.

Mr. Allen thought the information was what was required by the citizens, and he should therefore support the motion.

After a short discussion the Council divided on the motion, when there appeared—

Noes.	Ayes.
Wilshire	Jenkins
Josephson	Smidmore
Ryan	Moore
Lingard	Broughton
Egan	Driver
Brown	Allen
Paton	M'Donald
Board	Thornton
Wilkie	Neale
	Thurlow.

The Chairman declared the motion carried.

COOK WARD.

Mr. Thornton moved that the Town Clerk do cause to be laid on the table of the Council, without delay, a statement in detail of all sums of money collected from Cook Ward arising from rates, fees, fines, &c., from the commencement of the corporation to the 31st December last; and an account of all sums of money expended in the same ward during the same period. His reasons for bringing this motion forward were, first, to show the groundlessness of the charges which had been made against the Improvement Committee with respect to the works effected in this ward; and secondly, because he did not think that a full share of expenditure had taken place in the ward.

Mr. Josephson could not help thinking that the Councillor meant to be satirical in his remarks as to the Improvement Committee. He believed it would be found, as it had been on a former occasion when an outcry was made about the neglect of Cook Ward, that far more had been spent in that locality than it was entitled to.

Alderman Allen should support the motion, as the mover stated it would clear up the charges against the Improvement Committee.

The motion was carried.

MR. O'DONNELL.

Mr. Lingard moved, that in the terms of a resolution of the Council, of date 5th June last, accepting Patrick Moore, the elder, of Cook's River, as surety for the due performance of the duties of Andrew Higgins, Inspector of Slaughter houses, &c., in the place of H. F. O'Donnell, Mr. O'Donnell be exempted from all responsibility as surety for Higgins. The misunderstanding which Mr. O'Donnell had fallen into in respect of his responsibility for Higgins, was owing to the neglect of some one in that office, who he could not find out.

Mr. Driver seconded the motion.

Mr. Wilshire opposed the motion, and could not think the Council were to blame. It was Mr. O'Donnell's duty to look after his own business, and to see that he was legally released from his bond.

Mr. Josephson could not see that any neglect at all was chargeable on the Council, Mr. O'Donnell must be entirely liable for his own neglect.

Mr. Thornton opposed the motion, not considering that O'Donnell was morally liable.

Mr. Allen: Although no doubt Mr. O Donnell was legally liable, yet he thought that as honest men they ought to release him from it. The Council having by a resolution accepted a surety in the stead of O'Donnell, notice ought to have been given to O'Donnell when that surety declined to sign the bond. There appears to have been great irregularity in the whole of this matter. It appears there had been a former defalcation on the part of Higgins, which however was paid up by his sureties. Why such an officer was continued in the service of the Council he could not say. Nor could he see how it happened that Higgins was a defaulter for £45 (about the amount of nine weeks' arrears, whilst it ought to have been paid to the treasurer weekly.) There must have been great neglect; and they ought, if they would, do to O'Donnell as they would wish to be done by.

Mr. Lingard, at the suggestion of several Councillors, withdraw the motion for the present.

The Council then adjourned till three o'clock on Monday next.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, PITT-STREET.

A large and interesting meeting of the members of this church and congregation was held in the spacious school room, on Tuesday evening. The occasion which called them together was the completion of the ninth year of the ministry of the Rev. Dr. Ross. It had been previously determined to commemorate this event, by an attempt to entirely liquidate the residue of the debt, amounting to about £800. The effort succeeded, for without asking the subscription of any person not immediately belonging to the congregation, cash, checks, and promissary notes to fall due within about six months, were handed in, to the amount of £810 4s. The names of the donors were not made known, for, as was observed by one of the speakers, it would be invidious to publish them, whilst the widow's mite was perhaps a richer gift than that of the man who gave his hundred pounds. The meeting was opened with praise and prayer, after which the chairman, Dr. Ross, delivered an address. He presented several topics for thankfulness and gratitude, on behalf of himself, for the continued and almost uninterrupted enjoyment of good health, since his arrival in the colony, and for that measure of success with which it had pleased the great Head of the Church to bless his labours. And referring to the church, for that peace, harmony, and growing prosperity with which it had been favoured. The meeting was appropriately addressed, in moving the various resolutions, by the Rev W. B. Boyce, (superintendent of the Wesleyan Missions), the Rev Messrs. Mansfield, Beazley, and Ham; and also by Messrs. Fairfax, Foss, Owen, and Lloyd. The following resolutions were adopted.

1. That commemorative festivals by a religious society, when simply and piously observed, are useful as a means of recalling past mercies, and thereby exciting to holy gratitude; of uniting together more closely in the bonds of christian affection those who were engaged in celebrating them; and of stimulating them to renewed determinations of zeal and activity in the cause of their great Master.

2. This meeting rejoices that, with God's blessing, the engagements now entered into by voluntary effort will entirely liquidate the debt upon this place of worship, in the course of six months.

3. It is a matter of thankfulness that notwithstanding the difficulties of various kinds with which the voluntary principle has had to struggle, nothing has yet occurred to diminish our confidence in its efficiency, wherever it is allowed to operate freely and in a scriptural manner.

4. That this meeting expresses the cordial interest we take in the prosperity of the cause of Christ at Redfern in connexion with the labours of the Rev. Joseph Beazley, and of the church formed under his ministry, imporing for himself the richest personal blessings—long life and growing holiness, and for his people an increase in grace, in piety, in usefulness,—as well as healthy and rapid additions to their number; confident that in carrying out the principles upon which they profess to act the debt under which their place of worship labours will be speedily wiped off also.

This place of worship was opened on the 1st of January, 1840, at a cost, including the land, of nearly £6000; and now by the united exertions of the Minister and people, in the short space of little more than three years that large amount may be said to be virtually extinguished. It should be mentioned, however, that £1250 for the sale of the old chapel to the Free Church of Scotland goes into the asset funds. It is, we believe, not generally known that since Dr. Ross's arrival, this congregation have raised annually from £1200 to £1400 by voluntary effort, for the support of ministers, chapels, missions, schools, &c.

Mr. Mort.—In the Wool Store, at the rear of his Rooms, at 11 o'clock, Wool, Tallow, Hides, Sheepskins; in the Yard, at half-past 12 o'clock, 20 Saxon Merino Rams.

The Anti convict Movement.—There is a great deal of excitement in the city with respect to Earl Grey's intention of breaking faith with the colony and sending convicts to Sydney. Many who are not indisposed to receiving convicts, provided free people are sent with them, are so much astonished and annoyed at the terms of Earl Grey's despatch, that they are willing to join in any movement that may tend to thwart the noble lord's designs. A preliminary meeting is to be held at the Royal Hotel this afternoon, and we believe it is intended to call a public meeting of colonists some day next week.

Police Office.—Aldermen Broughton and Brown, yesterday's roster magistrates, were punctual in their attendance, which enabled a portion of the business in the various lists being disposed of in a second Court, whilst the Mayor and Mr. Miles were sitting in the other one. Although the business lists presented an aggregate of forty-six charges, through this full attendance of magistrates all were disposed of, with the exception of a summons case and a convict one, which latter required the presence of a second magistrate, shortly after eleven o'clock. An adjournment was then made until noon, but it was near one before the Court re-opened. This delay, it is merely just to remark, had its cause in the absence of a professional gentleman engaged in the summons case. Aldermen Egan assisted Mr. Miles in adjudicating in the convict charge, which closed the business before the Court. The magistrates summoned for to-day are Mr. J. Campbell and Alderman Egan.

The Inspector and the Cabs.—Mr. Stubbs had yesterday seven offenders against the By-laws before the Police Court. Three of the cases were for breaches of the 42nd section, in not having lamps lit; one for a breach of the 16th section, for taking an illegal stand; one for a breach of the 19th section, for not having the number on the carriage; and one for a breach of the 31st section, in carrying more than the authorised number of passengers. All the defendants, with the exception of one, but who was convicted, pleaded guilty, and were fined in the sum of 5s. each, and a like amount of costs was awarded. At the conclusion of the cases, Mr. Stubbs drew the attention of the Bench to the imperative necessity which existed of suppressing the practice that prevailed of the cabs being without lights of a night; as also that of their being off the appointed stands, and loitering about the streets. He was induced to submit what he now did from the following circumstance. About a fortnight or so since, an extensive burglary had been committed at a linen-draper's and silk-mercer's store in Pitt-street, when property amounting to upwards of £100 was carried off. Among other things left by the burglars on the premises were some candles, which, although there was a deficiency of that legal proof which was necessary to implicate the party with the burglary, he had no hesitation in expressing his conviction had been taken from the lamps of a carriage, whose driver's name he then mentioned.

Fatal Accident.—On Tuesday evening, whilst a lad of the name of Hartley, of about sixteen or seventeen years of age, whose parents reside at Tambourine Bay, was climbing a tree in that locality after an opossum, his foot accidentally slipped, and he was precipitated on the stump of an old sapling, which went through his body. The unfortunate lad expired almost instantaneously.

Hay, Corn, and Cattle Market By-laws.—A case came on for hearing at the Police Office yesterday, at the instance of Mr. Bernard M'Loughlin, the Clerk of the Campbell-street Market, against Mr. Ferris, the produce agent, for breach of the 25th section of the By-laws, for selling 120 sheep at the Hunter River Company's Wharf, instead of as required by the said By-law in the Market. Mr. Nichols appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. Yeomans for the defence, and it was stated that present proceedings were merely to try a point, and in the event of conviction following the lowest penalty would suffice. Further, it seemed that Mr. Ferris was, in the sale of the sheep, acting merely as an agent, and the refusal to pay the dues arose on the part of those by whom he was employed. Under these circumstances some technical objections to the information were waved. The witness called to prove the sale, however, failed in doing so, and although the purchaser of the sheep had been subpœnaed to prove this, and had attended when the case first stood for adjudication, yet as several remands had ensued, and no notice of the present one had been given him, he was not therefore now present. The Bench thereon dismissed the case. The question being one which greatly affects the produce agents, caused a numerous attendance of them at the proceedings.

Man Drowned.—A man of the name of Mudie, a carpenter, residing at Woolloomooloo, was accidentally drowned on Tuesday afternoon whilst attempting to swim across Middle Harbour. The deceased, who it seems was employed by Mr. Moore, of Lower George-street, in the erection of some houses at the abovenamed local ty, instead of waiting for a boat to proceed across the harbour to where his work was situate, endeavoured to swim thither, and was seen when half across to suddenly sink. The body, although the usual means had been employed, had not, up to a late hour last night, been recovered. The deceased has left a wife and six small children.

Sale of the late Mr. Nelson Lawson.—Mr. Lyons yesterday sold at Armstrong's Repository, the racing and other thorough bred horses forming the stud of the late Mr. N. S. Lawson. The following were the prices realized:—The Rake, £145; Dudu, £51; Persiana, £41; Young Lady Emily, £33; Varna, £17; Perone, £31; grey colt, 2 years old, £8; grey filly, 1 year old, £15; chestnut colt, 2 years old, £11; chestnut colt, 1 year old, £10; chestnut filly, 3 years old, £10; bay colt, 2 years old, £10; bay yearling colt, £14; one pair of carriage horses, £21; bay three year old gelding, £15; bay three year old gelding, £10; chestnut gelding, three years old, £11; black mare, 4 years old, £7 10s; grey filly, 3 years old, £5 10s.; grey colt, 2 years old, £6 10s. The stock were all distinguished by excellent quality, but many were far from being in good condition.

Sheep Sale.—A sheep sale was held by Mr. Stubbs yesterday, when 1928 head, running at Cook's Vale, were sold at 1s. 6d. per head. The station was situate within the boundary, and on yearly lease, and the improvements given in with the sheep; the stores on the station being taken at a valuation.

Horses and Mares.—Mr. Stewart sells at the Cattle Market this morning, at eleven o'clock, the whole of the Nanima stud, including Lady Rowena, and some of the best bred mares in the colony.—Communicated.

Seasonable Drapery Goods and Slops.—The goods for sale by Mr. Newton, comprise every thing at present in demand. Sale to commence at eleven o'clock precisely.—Communicated.

Surplus Stores, &c.—Purchasers are reminded that the surplus stores and fittings, ex Inchinnan; and 100 tons oil butts, will be sold by Mr. Samuel Lyons, at Towns' Wharf, this day, at twelve o'clock.—Communicated.

SURVEY OF THE SQUATTING DISTRICTS.

Deputy Surveyor General to Colonial Secretary.

Surveyor-General's Office,
Sydney, August, 1847.

Sir,—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt, by your letter, No. 47 292, dated the 26th ultimo, of the Governor's instructions that I should propose arrangements for the speedy completion of the surveys of the general features in the squatting districts, for the purpose of giving effect to the Order of Her Majesty in Council, with respect to the occupation of Crown lands beyond the boundaries; and I have accordingly the honour, under the First Article of the Instructions, to propose that nearly the whole strength of experienced surveyors in this department should be so distributed along the boundaries as to form a cordon of survey in the neighbourhood or within reach of the principal points already established by previous survey.

With the completion of the strength which I propose to render effective by submitting for his Excellency's favourable consideration the names of some assistant surveyors who by length of service, talent, and assiduity, have earned a title to promotion; my first object is to run parallels of latitude of half degrees, the perpendiculars to which will of course be meridians. These great lines will form the frame work of the whole survey, and will embrace all the points that it will be requisite to fix by minor operations for the purpose of completing the details, upon which it will be my duty to issue full instructions to each surveyor having charge of a district or system of great lines, and to propose such other arrangements as circumstances may suggest with respect to the expediency of recourse to contracts.

Under the second article of his Excellency's instructions I do myself the honour to append a return of the present establishment, the surveying force of which I propose should be augmented by the following promotions:—

To be surveyors on full-pay,—to commence from the date of commencing operations at their respective stations in the field:—

Licensed Surveyor Larmer,
" Davidson,
Assistant Surveyor Darke,
" Burnett
" Galloway,
" Kennedy,
(on his return from his present expedition).

To be Assistant Surveyors,—pay to commence as in the case of the surveyors:—

Mr. Ormsby, whose works in New Zealand have been before the Government, and who is fully competent to perform every duty required in surveying.

Mr. Draftsman Gordon;
Mr. Draftsman Ryan;
Mr. Draftsman M'Lean;
Mr. Burrows (who was formerly employed in surveying by contract at the Clarence River);
Mr. Draftsman Nutt, who has been for a long time on half-pay, and is now anxious to be placed in activity.

These promotions (should his Excellency be pleased to make them) will occasion two vacancies in the drawing branch of the department at head-quarters, to fill which there are two draftsmen, Mr. Lane and Mr. Bayley, now on half-pay; and I am sorry to be obliged to add that the services of the latter have hitherto been but of little value.

The increased expense which the proposed augmentation would involve would be about nine thousand five hundred pounds per annum, and even with this increase two difficulties present themselves, which (if not insurmountable) are of such a nature as to render all geodesical operations extremely tedious. I allude to questions of commissariat supplies and labourers to form the requisite parties to accompany the surveyors in the field. To obviate the first, a perpetual ambulance would appear indispensable, as the supplies from the squatters' stations must be very precarious, many of the stations being only in the course of formation, and those already established being frequently dependent on the more settled parts of the country for their ordinary supply of the first essentials of life. As an instance of this I may be permitted to mention that, on my return from the northward in December last, I was informed that at one very large establishment only fifteen pounds of flour remained in store awaiting the arrival of drays, then detained by the floods. It might therefore be necessary, with a view to facilitate our operations, that depôts exclusively for the use of the Government should be established in each district. With respect to the question of labour, I may observe, that although in ordinary cases a small survey may be conducted with the assistance of three men only, yet provision must be made in more extended works for a sufficient force to remove such obstacles as impede the vision. Cases will frequently occur in which the removal of a very small branch of a tree will occasion considerable delay; and it is well known that the principal points selected for taking an horizon of angles being chiefly the best defined tops of mountains, are almost invariably covered with timber or brushwood. To organize proper parties with free labourers at the present rate of wages would be so expensive that I could hardly hope it would be sanctioned as a permanent measure; and although it is possible that in course of time native blacks might be induced to render themselves permanently useful in our parties, still we must not wholly dependent on them. I have, therefore, no alternative but to express my regret that hitherto I am unable to devise any other expedient to meet this difficulty than the engaging, for a limited period for the Government, such number of men as may be required to form parties of moderate strength, trusting to the influx of emigrants for the completion of the arrangements.

Upon the third article of the instructions, I do not apprehend any considerable difficulty, but still all have the honour shortly to submit for the consideration of the Government, a general system of thoroughfares and sites of towns with a sufficient surrounding reserve to each to meet the views in contemplation.

I have, &c.,
S. A. PERRY,
Deputy Surveyor General.

The Honorable the Colonial Secretary.

Deputy Surveyor General to Colonial Secretary.

Surveyor-General's Office,
Sydney, October 11, 1847.

Sir,—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 1st instant, No. 47 377, communicating to me the intention of the Government as to the course to be pursued for the survey of the boundaries of runs in the unsettled and intermediate districts, and desiring that I will bring forward a specific proposition as to give effect to such intention; and I have accordingly the honour to propose that the field parties of the surveyors and assistant surveyors, named in the margin [Surveyors—White and Townsend, assistant-surveyors—Larmer, Davidson, Darke, Burnett, Galloway, Gormans, and M'Cabe] should be completed to the effective strength of six men each, the same arrangement being applicable to each district, and with sufficient means of transport to enable them to carry provisions for three months; arrangements being made by contract, with some of the bordering settlers, for ensuring a constant supply, so as to prevent the necessity for sending the men back to the towns. As it appears from the representations that have reached me, that in some districts the surveyors experience considerable difficulty in keeping the parties together, owing to the fluctuating rate of wages, it would seem advisable that the number of men required for the whole service should be engaged in Sydney or Parramatta, and by indentures to continue their services for three years. Under such an arrangement, the parties could at once take the field, and be in a position to verify the work of the contractors; and I would further beg leave to propose, than an advertisement for tenders, to survey the boundaries of runs, should appear without loss of time; the districts for which surveys will be required, are as follows, viz.: Moreton, Murrumbidgee, Lachlan, Wellington, Darling (Supplementary), Bligh, Liverpool Plains (North and South), New England, M'Leay, Clarence, Darling Downs (East and West), and Moreton. This comprises all the occupied country, extending to the River Darling, at its confluence with the Murray, and to the Culgoa and Ballone rivers to the northward, which is assumed to extend only to latitude 26°, though I believe there are many stations beyond this parallel, and is of course exclusive of Port Phillip, where I presume the requisite arrangements will be made under the direction of his Honor the the Superintendent. Enclosed herewith is the form of advertisement for tenders which I propose should be inserted in the Government Gazette at the earliest possible period. As the field-work in its progress will doubtless entail a proportionate increase of work in the office, I beg leave to recommend that Mr. Draftsman M'Lean may be allowed the increase to which he would have been entitled under the system prior to 1842, and that Mr. Nutt and Mr. Lane, now on half-pay, be placed in activity.

I have, &c.,
S. A. PERRY,
Deputy Surveyor General.

The Honorable the Colonial Secretary.

Deputy Surveyor-General to Colonial Secretary.

Surveyor-General's Office, Sydney,
October 22, 1847.

Sir,—Referring to my letter of the 11th instant, in which I mentioned the establishment that I considered requisite to carry out the intentions of the Government, relative to the survey of licensed runs, with a view to the issue of leases, according to the arrangement communicated to me by your letter of the 1st instant, No. 47,377, I have now the honour further to propose, that the distribution of the several surveyors of this department, exercising a supervision over the surveyors working by contract in the measurement of runs, shall be as follows, viz.:—

In the district of

1. Moreton and Darling Downs	Mr. Burnett
2. New England and Gwyder	Mr. Galloway
3. Clarence and M'Leay	Mr. Darke
4. Liverpool Plains	Mr. Gorman
5. Bligh	Mr. White
6. Wellington	Mr. Davidson
7. Darling	Mr. MacCabe
8. Lachlan	Mr. Larmer
9. Murrumbidgee and Monaroo	Mr. Townsend

There will then remain available for measurements for purchase within the settled districts,—

Mr. Shove, for Cumberland and Camden; Mr. Warner, for Brisbane and environs. Mr. Davidson, having a manageable district, has expressed his willingness to perform such measurements as may be required in the Bathurst country, and as the district of Bligh is not very extensive, a similar arrangement may be made with Mr. White. The small measurements in the immediate neighbourhood of Sydney can be performed by Mr. Gordon, and by such arrangement any further recourse to contract may be av

the present year from their predecessors. Nothing daunted, however, by previous failures, Lord Grey asks us to "open our mouths, and shut our eyes" again; but, after the manner in which the ministerial promise of last year was fulfilled, and after the fate of the experiments hitherto made by Lord Grey in his attempts at colonization, it is rather too much to expect that we should participate in the "sanguine expectations which," as his Lordship very naively says, "he entertains that, hereafter, it will be in his power to show what practical measures have been adopted to promote emigration, and facilitate the settlement of the wide regions of fertile land," &c., &c. We can but say, that the only practical measure, with reference to emigration, in which to our knowledge Lord Grey has been concerned this year, is that most unwise and unnecessary law, which he, in repeated despatches urged and persuaded the Canadian Legislature to adopt, and which imposes such a tax upon emigrants as almost entirely to stop the salutary stream of settlers into the province, and to divert four-fifths of it into the United States.

On the whole, it is difficult to imagine any motive for the authoritative reprint of the speeches on which we have been commenting, except a characteristic determination, on Lord Grey's part, to show that he is not to be brow-beaten, and that the less the public think of his defence, the better he likes it himself.

We have left ourselves little space for remark on the pamphlet bearing the signature of "Niger;" but then we have not much inclination to break a butterfly upon the wheel. On the assumption, however, that the anonymous author is a subordinate employe in the Colonial Office, there is something very comical in the admiration and attachment which he expresses towards his superiors in their adversity, and in the plaintive sympathy which he proffers to them, under the aspersions and invectives of which they have been of late so frequently the objects. The argument of the pamphlet is divided into two parts. The first contains an exposition of Lord Grey's old theory, that the British West Indians are by no means badly off, but are only "playing booty," to save themselves from taxation; and that the real cause of their inferiority to the Spaniards and Portuguese, lies in their "sulky opposition to improvement," by which they hope to vex the Home Government into protecting them. The second part is a review of Sir William Molesworth's speech on Colonial Government, and the strongest point in it appears to be a list of the great men who have, during the last ten years, been Colonial Secretaries and Colonial Governors. The connection of "Niger" with Lord Grey is here, again, clearly shown by the congenial confidence with which, after stringing together a number of names, few of which have anything remarkable about them, he appeals to his readers whether "such names" require defence. But when amongst them are found those of Lord Torrington, Sir Henry Young, and Sir Eardley Wilmot, we should be tempted (but that the dry rectitapism of the man precludes the idea of a joke) to suspect him of a secret design to mock his employers under pretence of advocacy.

It is satisfactory to know that "the attacks on the Colonial Office" have been found to require an answer; but, to those who believe that office to be a great incubus on our political system, it is more satisfactory still to have elicited defences of such weakness as those presented to the public in the pamphlets on which we have been commenting.

STEAM NAVIGATION.

At the annual meeting of the British Association for the advancement of Science, Mr. Scott Russell read a paper 'On the Improvements which have been made in Steam Navigation,' which he explained by appropriate diagram—The first great improvement that had been made was in the boilers. Formerly, the boiler flues were constructed of great length, so that the smoke was kept winding round and round in the flues, and at last was allowed to escape with difficulty. Now, however, they had adopted the plan of getting as much fire as possible in the shortest space of time,—and this had been accomplished by imitating as nearly as they could the locomotive engine boiler, by having tubes of thin metal which would evaporate a much greater quantity of water in the same time as flues of the usual thickness; now, also, instead of taking the smoke a long distance as in the old fashion, they used short flues of four to six feet in length, and by having a great many of as thin metal as possible, they heated the greatest quantity of water, and had the additional advantage of keeping the metal cool,—in consequence of which a boiler of smaller extent and surface was of much greater efficiency with less weight of metal. The next point of improvement was in the engine; in the construction of which, however, there had been less change than in other matters. The former beam engine had been changed for the direct action engine, which was of various kinds; but the greatest change which had been made within the last ten years consisted in the employment of greater quantities of wrought iron in the construction of the engines, instead of the mass of cast iron formerly used. This was the only great change—for the newest Halifax steamers were still fitted up with the old fashioned or lever engines. The next improvement consisted in working steam expansively to a much greater extent than heretofore. It is only within the last ten years that they had adopted this principle: the effect of which was, that instead of completely filling the cylinder with steam, they filled only to the extent of one-fourth—a volume of steam, not of course of equal density, but by which they got two-thirds of the work done, and at one-fourth of the cost. The next improvement had been made in the paddle; not so much perhaps in the wheel itself—for he was still inclined in favour of the old paddle wheel, although for short voyages he admitted the advantage of the feathering paddle-wheel which had been advocated by Mr. Price at their meeting some years ago, and he had then opposed him:—but of this by-and-bye. Another great improvement which had been made was the driving the paddle-wheel faster. They had an old maxim which was, whereas a good old horse going 2½ miles an hour could not draw advantageously at more than 220 feet per minute, and that as the steam-engine was only a substitute for horses, and reckoned as so much horse-power, it ought not to go faster that 2½ miles per hour—and this one thing had kept them back for half a century. He did not mean that the result should be faster than 2½ miles per hour, but the piston should not rise up and down in the cylinder faster than 2½ miles an hour, which was only 4 feet in a second, while the motion of steam of 15 lb. was 1100 feet in a second. Fortunately, however, this old maxim had been abandoned, and the piston now moved from 250, 270, to 300 feet in a minute. For this improvement they were indebted to no new principle, but to the application of mathematical principles of science. He now came to another great improvement, which was the change in the formation of steam-boats, which had been radical—he meant the entire alteration in the form of the ships. A few years ago steam-vessels which would go ten or twelve miles an hour were deemed fast ships; now however, we had attained a much higher rate of speed. Vessels were then built on the old-fashioned principle that the water-line should be nearly straight, and that the run of the vessel should be a fine line, and that there should never be a hollow line, except a little in the run of the ships, but that there most certainly should not be any hollow line in the bow, for there the water-line should be straight or a little convex. Researches and inquiries were, however, made by a Committee of the British Association as to the form which would enable the vessel to go faster through the water. These inquiries lasted for years, and they established by a series of experiments, a set of very curious facts. Formerly every builder of ships had notions of proportion; some that the length should be four times the breadth—others that it should be four and a half or five—and some went so far as to say the length should be six times the breadth, but these were deemed innovations so that although the proportions of width as compared with breadth were said to be fixed once, yet strangely enough every one differed as to those proportions. Another question was, what part of the vessel should have the greatest width, and it was generally thought that the greatest width should be nearest the bow. Some daring persons had, however, put it back as far as the centre of the ship. This was, however, the exception, and not the rule. Then there was another great principle, which was that the bow and the stern should exactly balance each other,—that is, that the vessel should be equally balanced; but the new rules which the British Association had established were as follows:—They began by upsetting the old rule with respect to the proportions which the length should bear to the breadth, finding that the greater the speed required the greater should be the length, and that the vessel should be built merely of the breadth necessary to enable the engines to be put in, and to stow the requisite cargo. Then the second great improvement made by them was that the greatest width of water-line, instead of being before the middle, should be abaft the middle of the vessel, and in fact two-fifths from the stern, and three fifths from the bow. The next great improvement was that instead of having the bow broad and bluff, or a cod's head bow, for the purpose of rising over waves, you might have hollow water lines, or what were called wave lines from their particular form, and with that form the vessel would be propelled with less power and greater velocity,—and also that instead of keeping to the old line run abaft and cutting it away you might with great advantage have a fuller line abaft, provided it was fine under the water. Thus by these improvements the form of the old vessel was pretty nearly reversed, to the great annoyance of the old school, and the steamers were given large and commodious cabins and after holds, instead of having cabins so crouched in that you could hardly stand in them. Another heresy, introduced by the British Association, was that of the principle as to the balance of the stern and the bow upon which they now rested; but which was founded in a most singular error, for they left out something which was very material. They concluded that the ways acted equally on both ends of the vessel in striking it; but they did not take into consideration the impossibility of this when a vessel was moving, not having taken into calculation the velocity of the wave or of the vessel, and that from this circumstance the concussion from a wave striking the bow would be a most powerful one, while it could not be so with regard to the stern, because if the velocity of the wave meeting it was fifteen miles the shock would be as of thirty miles; and, therefore, it became most plain that the bow would give the greatest resistance to the wave. He had examined all the fastest steamers which had accomplished fifteen to seventeen miles an hour—and in smooth water eighteen miles an hour—and he would venture to state that there was not one of them which accomplished from fifteen to seventeen miles an hour, which had not all these alterations in every particular, and that the wave form and the wave principle were now adopted by all the great steam ship builders, and that all the fast steam-boats had what was called the wave bow. Now, of the eight boats on the Holyhead and Dublin stations, if examined it would be found that all of them were built on these principles, although in some of them there was still left a little of the old principle, some of the bows being made a little fuller and more straight; and if any one would look at one of these boats it would be perceived that the moment they moved the very wave itself rebelled against them and broke against their bows,—and that consequently those were slower than any of the others. All of them, however, were vessels of the first class; and he gave the details of their construction. All of them were examples of the value of the form and the principles which the British Association had advocated and introduced at a very early period in its history.—Mr. J. Taylor stated, that as Treasurer of the Association, he could bear witness to the value of the efforts of the Association in this direction; and he felt bound in justice to state that the credit Mr. Russell had given to the Association was chiefly due to himself, as the individual who, with the late Sir J. Robinson, had conducted the investigations on this subject.—Mr. J. Price agreed with Mr Russell in all that he had adduced. There was, however, one mode of steam navigation one mode of propulsion to which he had not alluded, he meant the mode of propulsion by the screw propeller. He would, therefore, mention that they had built a little vessel called the Neath Abbey, which plied from Neath to Bristol, a distance of upwards of sixty miles, and which had only twelve inch cylinders, in fact a mere toy—of course using high steam. Now, she could walk round the Beresford, which had two forty-horse power engines:—the working her upon the high pressure steam principle necessarily increased the speed of the piston. With these engines they had stepped out of the old track. They had not adopted the American plan of a high pressure engine, and pulling off the steam, but of a high pressure engine without pulling off the steam, and without using a jet of cold water. He confessed that when this plan was proposed by his younger coadjutors he, as one of the old fashioned, hesitated—but at length he consented. The Neath Abbey had a screw propeller with three blades, which were immersed under the water her propeller being about 3½ feet in diameter. The vessel is built in the best form allowing sufficient breadth for her engines. The two 12-inch cylinders are placed diagonally and slung up by wrought iron beams, and they lay hold of one crank pin like the hands of two men working at a grindstone; and thus they conducted their engines almost in a snuff-box. Then they employed their boiler in the manner described by Mr. Russell. Then they came to the condensation of the steam; which they did not allow to go puffing off, but let it pass back into the boiler condensed and in a distilled state—which accounted for their never having any mud or dirt in their boilers.—Galignani's Messenger.

PROSPECTS OF THE ASSOCIATION FOR FOUNDING CANTERBURY COLONY.

(From the Colonial Church Chronicle for October.)

About the time that our former paper on this subject appeared, Mr. Gladstone delivered his masterly speech on the grant of Vancouver's Island to the Hudson's Bay Company. We need not characterise his able expose of that Company's proceedings, nor anticipate the effect of it. But we found ourselves unexpectedly strengthened in the view we had been forced to take of the connexion of the above-named Association with the New Zealand Company, by the illustrations which Mr Gladstone gave of Adam Smith's dictum, that "of all expedients that could be found for stunting the trade of a new colony, that of an exclusive company was the most effectual."

The world has already had experience (he said) in the matter of colonisation by companies. Even the Under-Secretary for the Colonies had descanted eloquently on the miserable condition in which South Australia continued, as long as it was subjected to the control of a company.

Again, later in his speech, he added—

What has became of Mr. Wakefield and his system? What has become of his plan of selling land at a sufficient price, and importing emigrants with the produce of the sales?

In these sentences we have the implied opinion of that able statesman respecting colonization by means of companies. Is the New Zealand Company an exception to the rule?

We stated broadly in our last paper, that the plan of the association for founding Canterbury colony was, in itself, a noble project; but that it promised to be utterly marred by its pernicious alliance with the New Zealand Company. It is, indeed, a Mezentian union. We rested our judgment mainly on two grounds; first, the general repute and proceedings of the Company as a land-trading corporation; and secondly, the terms themselves of the compact, which are such that we could imagine them only to have been drawn by agents of the Company, for the purpose of securing to it either a large and speedy sale of land, or else the means of pursuing its own plans with the advantage and credit which it might derive from having been connected with the members of the Association.

We proceed now to illustrate these positions, in the earnest hope of drawing a prompt and effective attention to the subject, from the members of the Association, should we succeed in establishing a ground for our surmises.

Now, in speaking of the New Zealand Company, we shall indulge in no language of unseemly contumely. We do not know that it is worse than other companies of the same sort; we do know that individual members among the directors are as honourable as men can be. But companies do, and suffer to be done by their agents, what, as individuals, the managing directors would shrink from. We recollect the professions of the Company to deal fairly with the New Zealand natives, their solicitude in their behalf, &c. And we venture to say that no one of the directors, knowing this, would have dared to pursue such a shameful and vexatious line of conduct as is recorded of their chief agent, by Mr. Commissioner Spain, to avoid giving full compensation to the Maories for the lands acquired of them. We venture to say that no one of the directors would have dared to express, as his own opinion, what the Company did not hesitate to adopt and avow through their deputy-governor, that they always "had very serious doubts whether the Treaty of Waitangi"—that treaty, the proposed violation of which called forth the indignant protest of the Bishop of New Zealand—"could be treated by lawyers (!) as anything but a praiseworthy device for amusing and pacifying savages for the moment."

Of the Company, then, we shall content ourselves with saying, that, before examining the Report of the Parliamentary Committee on the subject, we shared only the current opinion that it had overreached itself in trading with the lands of New Zealand, and was nearly ruined. And we understood, too, as is stated very forbearingly in a memorandum of the Colonial Office, that "their embarrassment was the natural result of the Company having improvidently sold land to others before they had sufficiently ascertained that they had acquired a good title to it themselves."

We are bound to say that our examination of the Report of the Parliamentary Committee on the subject—partial as the Committee was to the Company—has not changed our opinion. The greedy haste, the grasping spirit, which perhaps belongs to such transactions—the stories of lands sold in England by map, and either never got by the purchasers, or found widely different from what they had been led to expect, or still claimed and actually possessed by the natives these facts came out in the evidence, and we leave them for the judgment of those who choose to wade through the statements. Our impression on examining them is, that, as simple men, we should, for our parts, have been careful to decline any dealings with parties, for one of whom, Colonel Wakefield the chief agent, the very Maories have found the sobriquet—the appropriate one, as Lieutenant M'Donnel informs us in his evidence—of "Wide-awake."

Feeling this, we are naturally at a loss to understand how a body of philanthropic gentlemen should have coalesced with the Company, in order to carry out a disinterested and patriotic design. We say coalesced, because the "plan" is put out as "agreed upon between the Canterbury Association and the New Zealand Company;" and because as was mentioned in our last paper, the movements of the Association have been practically regulated by the members of the managing committee who are connected with the Company.

What, then, will be the probable result of this? This is the question we have to answer, and for that purpose we turn to the compact entered by the Association with the Company. And we beg our readers attention to the facts which seem to us to secure the failure of the plan, together with the probable embarrassment, pecuniary and otherwise, of the members of the Association.

The facts of the case, as they bear upon our present argument, are these:—

A portion of the northern, and the whole of the middle island, constitute, together, the Southern Province of New Zealand; and over all this district the New Zealand Company have accorded to them, by Government, a right of pre-emption—that is, they are middle-men between the Government and purchasers in the sale of the land.

The Association, then, have agreed to take the land they need for the Canterbury colony from this district; why they have so agreed it is not easy to discover. However, according to the agreement, about one million acres are to be reserved for the purposes of the Association, in such spot as the agent of the Association may select.

The price to be paid for this land to the Company is 10s. per acre, as sales are made to or by the Association.

In order to carry out their beneficent intentions, the Association propose to require of purchasers an additional sum of £2 10s. for each acre, rural land; in return for which the Association or Company, or both together, undertake to provide therewith surveys, roads, ecclesiastical and educational institutions, and the immigration of labouring settlers.

The Association propose to obtain a charter of incorporation, to facilitate their proceedings.

Meanwhile, to secure the members of the Association from personal responsibility, the Company have advanced a considerable sum to the Association, to pay the expense of the charter, the current expenses of the business of the Association, the cost of sending an agent to New Zealand, the surveys, road-making, &c., &c.

Mr. Thomas is already gone out as agent for this purpose. He is represented, indeed, in the prospectus, as the agent of the Association, but we apprehend that he is in reality the agent of the Company, for he is certainly paid by it. He is instructed to select a site out of the Company's lands, for the colony; but it is provided that he is not to acquire any land without the written sanction of the Governor and the Bishop.

By Article ii. the following proviso is made, which we take the liberty of giving in italics:—"The said tract to be so reserved during a period of ten years from the date of receiving intelligence that such tract, selected as above mentioned, is in possession of the Company; provided that within six months from such date land to the value of £300,000 be sold, and that during each year from the said date there be sold at least one-tenth part of the land remaining unsold at the commencement of that year; failing which, the Company to be released from further reservation of the tract for the purposes of the Association."

Upon the points of this agreement, we observe, first, that for each acre the Company will be paid 10s.; an exorbitant price, to judge from the price commonly given for land to the natives, and to judge from the fact that the Government valuation of land is only 5s. Why should the Association not purchase direct through the Government in the northern province, and so save half the sum?

Next, as to the selection of the site. The Association protect themselves from the casualty of finding an unfavourable site thrust upon them, by providing that the sanction of the Governor and the Bishop should be previously obtained. But do they expect that these authorities, energetic men as they are, are to take a voyage or journey of from one to three hundred miles, to look over a tract of land, equal to a county larger than Essex, nearly as large as Norfolk, in their behalf! or that, without this, they can safely burden themselves with the responsibility of selling it?

Thirdly, we understand that in New Zealand about one acre in six* is adapted to agriculture How much of the million acres do the Association expect will be of this character? They look to raising £3,000,000 upon it; are they sure that all the productive land, at 10s. per acre, will realise one-sixth of the sum?

But, mainly and chiefly,—for what has been said is of no great moment,—how will the second article be carried out? On the fact being announced that the tract of a million acres is acquired by the Company, within six months from that date the Association must have sold land to the amount of £300,000: failing which, the Company is to be relieved from further reservation of the tract for the purpose of the Association.

On June 1, 1849, we will suppose, tidings arrive that the land has been acquired. We name this date because we are told that Mr. Thomas's final selection may be expected to be announced in about a year's time. Now, we humbly beg to inquire whether the members of the Association, unpractised gentlemen, expect to take that land into the market, and to raise on it, within six months, the sum of £300,000? Why, a railway company can scarcely do so; and are colonial lands in such requisition just now as to justify such a calculation?

It may help us to obtain an answer to this inquiry, if we simply refer to past facts; if we see what the New Zealand Company has been itself able to do in past years. We shall examine what results they have secured, in regard to the sum they have raised on land, the quantities of land they have sold, and the emigrants they have sent out; and contrast the expectations of the Association with these data.

1. The New Zealand Company (Return No. 9, Appendix to Parliamentary Report, No. 14), sold between May, 1839, and April, 1844, in three settlements, lands to the following value:—

At Wellington	£128,040
At Nelson.	£131,760
At New Plymouth ..	£26,560
	£286,360

That is, this, a trading company, managed in five years to sell, at three separate settlements, at about £1 per acre, land to the total amount of £286,360.

The Association hope to sell, in six months, in one small district, at £3 per acre, land to the value of £300,000.

2. The Association assume that they may sell "in the first year or two," 200,000 acres. Now, first of all, it is very doubtful whether, out of a million of acres, there exists any such quantity as this capable of immediate or easy culture—at least in those parts of New Zealand still unoccupied. Recollect, the choice positions are already gone and occupied. But suppose there be such a quantity, turn again to the past experience of the New Zealand Company, and see how much land they were able to part with in any one district in a given space of time.

By return No. 9, (Appendix to Report, No. 14,) the Company state that from 1839 to 1844, i.e. five years, they sold in the settlements of

Wellington	127,790 acres.
Nelson	88,239 "
New Plymouth ..	12,509 "

That is, in five years, in no one settlement did they sell so much as 130,000 acres; in all three together they scarcely exceeded 200,000, and this, when they had no competition in the market; and yet the Association assume they may sell 200,000 "in the first year or two!"

3. Or look at the point of emigration, (in p. 17.) The Association reckon that at least one adult labourer will be required for each thirty acres, in order for the most profitable tillage;—it will therefore be requisite that 6600 agriculturists be sent out in "the first year or two" for the culture of the 200,000 acres, if they are not to remain barren. They reckon on receiving £200,000 to help in this emigration. Well, look once more at the success of the New Zealand Company. Lord Grey, in his speech of August 10, 1848, stated that the Company in ten years had exported 7,000 emigrants to New Zealand The returns of the Company (No. 12. Appendix to Report) state nothing contrary to this, but do show that the proportion of adult labourers to the whole number who emigrated, was about one-third; so that, in nine or ten years, the Company caused to emigrate about 2,333 adult males.

But the Association reckon on providing 6600 adult labourers in one or two years; and this, not paying, as the Company did, all, within a trifle, of the passage-money, but "by the system of partial contributions to passages, instead of defraying the whole cost of them!"

We stay our hand here, though able to say more. We feel pain in saying so much, but it is better to anticipate and provide against what is wrong, than to let it come to a head, and do all its mischief. We are at a loss to understand how such an impracticable scheme could have been devised and accepted. We can only imagine that some active members of the New Zealand Company, in order to part with land in their tabooed district, prevailed somehow on a number of highly stationed and appreciated Church people, to lend their names to a scheme, fair in promise, but which seems to us to be delusive and impracticable.†

But what then? it may be asked; suppose what is said is true, and the six months elapse, and the money is not forthcoming, what then? Why then, first of all, the scheme falls to the ground; the Company reserve the land no longer; they sell it to whom they list, fettered by no well devised rules; they sell it at their own price of, say £1 per acre, and not £3, the price of the Association, with no provision for Church endowments, &c., and the whole scheme fails. Canterbury colony becomes a bubble that has burst. Considering the signal failure of the Chartist-memorial scheme, with the name of the venerated Primate at its head, we do not wish to see another plan patronised by him share the same fate. But further, who is to repay the New Zealand Company for the money advanced, for the charter (if obtained), the expenses of the Association, the expenses of Mr. Thomas, and, above all, the surveying and roadmaking, which (by the compact) will then have been going on for a year or more, and which cannot be stopped for some months longer? This money is advanced, "repayable out of the funds which will accrue from the sales of land." Is it expected that an amicable dissolution of the engagement will take place? Those who have read the correspondence of the Company with the Colonial Office, will hardly expect such forbearance and consideration. Further, what is to become of the purchasers of the land sold during the six months, the terms on which they purchased being impracticable? The money, we conclude, will be returned; but will the Company take back the land?

The perplexity and pecuniary embarrassment of all this to the respected members of the Association are obvious; meanwhile, the New Zealand Company will simply have sold some land by their means, and have gained in repute by connexion with some of the most trusted names in the country. We do not intend to impute unfair or sharp dealing to the Company; we will keep in our minds the fact of the Directors being honourable men; but still we say, it is a very unfortunate thing that the compact should have been so formed that, in reality, the Company will be gainers by the plan of the Association failing.

The best thing, as it seems to us, that could happen, would be to hear that the Governor or Bishop of New Zealand had withheld their sanction from the purchase of any spot on the ground of their inability to guarantee its fitness for the purposes designed.

Even this would be perplexing. But we linger no longer on the subject. We have carefully inspected the scheme, and our dispassionate, and certainly most disinterested, judgment we have recorded. It is just one of those subjects which it is our province and duty to examine.

We dismiss it with one consideration, which, even prior to inquiry into the exact facts, led us to suspect the soundness of the scheme. It is a known law, that no act of charity or beneficence can be done successfully, without a sacrifice of time, or means, or trouble, or anxiety on the part of the benefactor According to the proverb, "words break no bones;" and neither do they heal wounds. But here are assembled a number of philanthropic and influential men, to forward a great and noble scheme; but they try to do so "relieved from personal responsibility" (Art. xvi.) They "lend their names," as is said. They do not, they cannot give even time or attention to it. With the exception of one noble-minded man, we know no one on the managing committee, save the adherents of the New Zealand Company, who have at all examined or worked at the scheme. The issue can only be of one kind. We hope somehow it may yet be averted, and that so noble a design, backed by such noble names, may not be doomed to an ignoble failure.

* This is perhaps a high proportion, but we take the most favourable view.

† It has been stated to us, since the above was written, that the Company propose to form a similar scheme for a colony with a body of Dissenters.

THE STOWE PICTURES.—The Buckingham "Shakspeare" sold for 355 guineas to Lord Ellesmere. Cooper's beautiful miniature of Charles II., and the best of Sir Joshua's, were bought in. The Lely's sold well, the Kneller's were not first-rate, Van Huysum, Richardson, Hudson, Fuseli, Horner, and Hoppner, sold at very high prices. Stanfield's "Wreckers off Calais" brought 410 guineas; a Wilson, 695 guineas; another 110 guineas, &c., so that the picture sale did not lack spirit.

OUR NATIONAL DEBT REDUCED AND OUR STARVING POPULATION EMPLOYED AND WELL FED, AND A MARKET CREATED FOR OUR MANUFACTURES, BY EMIGRATION AND COLONISATION.

To the Editor of the London Mercantile Journal and Colonial Advocate

SIR,—None of those who call themselves, or are called by others, statesmen, have ever proposed measures for redeeming the National Debt. Judging from their past conduct, we must presume that they have no intention to reduce, or ever intend to pay off, the principal, however well inclined they are to add to its amount, as in the case of the emancipation of our negroes in the West Indian islands, and the recent relief afforded to the Irish. Indeed we could mention the names of those holding some of the highest offices in the State, who have declared in Parliament, that the debt was nothing more than a transferable annuity. Now it behoves fundholders themselves to consider whether the day may not too soon arrive, when the payment of the annuity will be repudiated, as well as the redemption of the principal: and with a view to guard against so fatal a contingency, we call their attention to the following plan, which offers an ample guarantee to the public creditor, and affords probably the only chance of payment, or relief to the public debtor.

I lay it down as an indisputable principle, that the colonies, whether acquired by conquest or discovery, ought always to be viewed only as an integral part of the British empire, consequently as the sole property of the people of the United Kingdom, by whose labour and money they have come into our possession; and therefore neither the present or any future government has any right whatever to alienate the lands of those colonies to any other than national uses.

All grants and conveyances to private persons effected through favouritism, I hold to be fraudulent, for I deem the price paid, or the market value which ought to be paid for such estates, is due and owing to the national treasury, and ought to be applied (like in the United States) to the liquidation of a national debt. This premised, I proceed to show how the object may be effected.

The land in New South Wales should be sold at the maximum rate of 20s. per acre, granting to all, the privilege of selecting a square mile of land in any unlocated part of the colony. And in respect to its bearing on the irredemption of the funded debt—suppose, for instance, a person holds £1000 three per cent consols, let such a person select, and receive in fee, one thousand acres, continuing to receive the dividends of the said stock till his death, and then let the £1000 three per cent. stock be cancelled and wiped out of the national debt; by this method the stockholder would gain from 10 to 15 per cent. in the interchange of his stock for land.

By such a plan, we should rapidly promote colonization, and induce men of capital to seek a new home in our transmarine dominions, who for their own interest, would be compelled to take out with them efficient labourers, and thus diminish the severity of the competition among ourselves for employment. It is also clear that we should convert perpetual into terminable annuities on a fair principle of equity—as none would be compelled to purchase land on the conditions here prescribed unless with his own free will or consent.

Such, in a few words, is the plan to which I venture to call public attention; but before the proposed scheme could be carried out, the unwise and vicious regulations now enforced at the colonial office must be wholly changed. What those regulations are I will proceed to explain—and I speak on the authority of a gentleman who has resided twenty years in New South Wales

In that colony there are only nineteen counties set apart by Government for purchasers to locate themselves on freeholds. The lands beyond this boundary of the nineteen counties are occupied by squatters, some of them monopolise one million of acres to each individual to depasture their sheep and cattle, at less than a half-penny per acre rent to Government.

The lands within the nineteen counties have been culled over again and again for nearly sixty years by grantees and purchasers at five shillings per acre, so that, all the water frontages, ponds, &c., are now completely monopolized; consequently only the most inferior and absolutely refuse worthless lots remain, and for these the colonial authorities demand an upset price of one pound per acre, which the Surveyor-General, Sir Thomas Mitchell, publicly declared were not worth sixpence per acre, whilst the most fertile lands beyond those counties are let for fourteen years, as stated above, at a half-penny per acre—how anomalous! and how completely has this system annihilated Emigration Funds.

The high price of waste lands has annihilated Emigration Funds altogether, except the town allotment money arising from suburban and village allotments, and which have sold well for a few years past, from which a limited fund has accrued, together with surplus revenue for Emigration.

Now to remedy this state of things, the boundary system of the nineteen counties must be abolished, so that persons might purchase where they pleased at 20s. per acre in the interior—by this plan, thousands of small, and many large capitalists in England, would avail themselves of the opportunity of buying land in the colony, and by this measure being adopted, a large fund might be created for the transit of poor industrious labourers. Moreover, as already remarked, many would be induced to take estates in Australia in exchange for stock now held in the funds, and thus provide for their younger sons and daughters.

Many other hardships arising out of the present system of sale of Crown lands remain to be exposed, as they tend to obstruct colonisation. These relate principally to the disposal of lands within the nineteen counties, as none is yet publicly offered for sale outside the boundary. If a married man and his family arrive in the colony, the wife and children must be put into lodgings in Sydney, while the husband must go into the interior in search of land, if he intends to purchase any. After journeying in various directions, within the boundary, he returns to Sydney, and reports the location he has selected to the office of the Surveyor-General, and that report is then subjected to the Governor's approval. The land is then advertised for public sale for three months, and even sometimes afterwards put up at a higher price than 20s. per acre, if the authorities think the emigrant is able to pay more, and very desirous of buying it, so that it very frequently happens that the emigrant after all his anxiety, expense, and trouble in exploration and selecting a location, (as a freehold for himself to improve) has often found his hopes defeated, and obliged after all to take up his domicile in the bush as a squatter, by erecting a hut and paying a license of £10 per annum for a run of 25,000 acres, to graze four or five thousand sheep, and if the number exceed five thousand, the squatter must take another £10 license.

For the reasons thus briefly assigned, it appears to me that the whole system now in force for the disposal of waste land in that colony should be remodelled; as matters now stand—the Government obstruct, rather than facilitate emigration. We possess in New South Wales ample means, if not for wholly redeeming, certainly for materially reducing our National Debt, and giving employment to hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of our almost starving poor. By limiting the boundaries of land for sale and location, we check the spirit of enterprise by narrowing its sphere, and seek to force a sterile soil into culture, while acres further off invite our industry. By pursuing the method proposed, I have sketched out, we should give a solid guarantee to the fundholder—instead of an aerial vision, (which he has at present) reduce our debt, with it our taxes, diminish our poor rates at least one half, and create a new market for our manufactures, besides diverting the popular mind, New South Wales would supply us with cotton, as well as she does now with wool, and it is sheer madness in the people of England not to avail themselves of the benefits to be derived from their own colonial lands and their rich resources—the people have lavished enormous sums, and spilt their precious blood to acquire a colonial empire, and now it is their true policy to turn that empire to the best account. In the Australian colonies there are boundless regions of late years discovered, of good and available country, which will remain for another century before it is wholly occupied, although it is suitable for all purposes. Nor is there any other country where the same amount of capital and human labour can be made so speedily and so amply remunerative, simply because the land, in its natural state, affords the best pasturage for sheep and cattle, and the climate is eminently adapted to the production of the finer class of wools. There is no necessity, if all the surplus population in Britain emigrate there, for the tedious work and costly process of "clearing," (like in America and Canada) and no great annual expense has to be incurred as in a purely agricultural country. Human hands are chiefly required to gather a harvest which nature alone provides. The increase of cattle and sheep is greater than would be appropriated by any possible augmentation of population. There is thus a self-generating capital, and territorial space adequate to the largest deportation of emigrants if 100,000 souls were removed from Britain to Sydney and Port Phillip, the present year, there is the means of absorbing them at once into the community, provided Government will allow emigrants with small capital the selection of locations on any of the unappropriated lands in the colony, even at 20s. per acre, for there land is better worth 20s. per acre, than other sterile land is worth sixpence; but all our efforts will be vain, we are afraid, so long as the Colonial Office is governed by party politicians, and its patronage used only for party purposes.

COSMOPOLITE.

THE GLACIERS.—It is scarcely possible to estimate the quantity of ice in the Alps; it is said, however, that, independent of the glaciers in the Grisons, there are 1500 square miles of ice in the Alpine range, from eighty to six hundred feet thick. Some glaciers have been permanent and stationary in the Alps time immemorial, while others now occupy ground formerly bearing corn or covered with trees, which the irresistible force of the ice has swept away. These ice rivers, formed on the snow-clad summits of the mountains, fill the hollows and high valleys, hang on the declivities, or descend by their weight through the transverse valleys to the plains, when they are cut short by the increased temperature, and deposit those accumulations of rocks and rubbish, called moraines, which had fallen upon them from the heights above. In the Alps the glaciers move at the rate of from twelve to twenty five feet annually, and, as in rivers, the motion is most rapid in the centre. They advance or retreat according to the mildness or severity of the season, but they have been subject to cycles of unknown duration. From the moraines, as well as the striæ engraven on the rocks over which they have passed, M. Agassiz has ascertained that the valley of Chamouni was at one time occupied by a glacier that had moved towards the Col li Balme. A moraine 2000 feet above the Rhone at St. Maurice shows that at a remote period glaciers had covered Switzerland to the height of 2155 feet above the Lake of Geneva. Their increase is now limited by various circumstances—as the mean temperature of the earth, which is always above the freezing point in those latitudes; excessive evaporation; and blasts of hot air, which occur at all heights, in the night as well as in the day, from some unknown cause. They are not peculiar to the Alps, but have been observed also on the glaciers of the Andes. Besides, the greater the quantity of snow in the higher Alps, the lower is the glacier forced into the plains.—Mrs. Somerville

WHAT DO WE OWE TO BIRMINGHAM?—The cottages and humble dwellings of England are indebted to Birmingham and its neighbourhood for a greater amount of neat interior fittings, useful utensils, and ingenious knick-knacks of all kinds, then fall to the lot, perhaps, of any other country in the world. Let the reader take his eyes off this sheet for a few minutes and glance round the room in which he may be sitting—we care not whether it be in a house of £10 or £100 a year rental: let him look at the doors, the windows, the fire-place, the cupboards, or closets, the furniture, the implements and vessels, the ornaments or decorations—wherever he may look, Birmingham is before him. There is scarcely a room in this country, except in the most poverty stricken hovel, that does not contain some article of Birmingham manufacture. Let him then go from houses to persons; let him look at English dress, and all its endless variety, and then say whether there is in one such dress that is not indebted to Birmingham for something or other in a metallic form. It may be trivial, it is true; but this very triviality only the better illustrates the minute applications which are now made of metal. Will not a beaver or silk hat escape this enumeration? Look at the little buckle that fastens the band. Are not our boots excepted? Look at the nails and "tips," or at the fags of laces. Female attire? Let the buttons, and buckles, and clasps, the pins, and hooks-and-eyes and lace holes, the combs and bracelets and armlets, the rings and brooches and necklaces—let them all give evidence to the part which Birmingham and its vicinity have taken in decking out any and every Englishwoman. If you write a letter, look at your desk, your ink stand, your steel-pen, your pen-holder, your wafer-stamp, your seal, your candlestick or taper-stand, and think how far Birmingham has been concerned in them. If a lady, seated at her work, would gossip a little about her work-trinkets, the needles, pins, thimble, bodkin, piercer, crochet and knitting needles—all would tell of Birmingham, or in some few instances of Sheffield or Redditch. If you walk abroad, and rain befall you, ask who made the metal work of your umbrella? If you ride on horseback, think where the bridal-bit, the stirrups, and the buckles came from. In short, do anything, go anywhere, buy, beg, borrow, make, alter, eat, drink, walk, ride, look, hear, touch—you cannot shake off Birmingham for many minutes together.—The Land we Live in.

ISLAND OF IONA.—On the 8th of August, the first synod of the united dioceses of Argyll and the Isles, was held at Oban, under the presidency of the Bishop, Dr. Ewing. On the following day (Wednesday) after morning prayer, the Very Rev. Dean Hood preached a sermon in aid of the Scottish Episcopal Church Society. On Thursday the Hon. G. F. Boyle, who was present, having placed his yacht at the disposal of the Bishop and Clergy, the greater number of those who remained in Oban sailed with the Bishop to Iona. On landing there, they were joined by a large party from the steamer, which at this season visits Staffa and Iona, from Oban, and the whole of them proceeded to the ruins of the ancient cathedral, where Divine service, according to the rites of the Episcopal Church, was once more celebrated, after the lapse and silence of ages. The Very Rev. the Dean read the Litany, and the Bishop preached from the words, "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world." In the course of the sermon he showed how its faithfulness to this doctrine had raised the island they were treading, from its unknown and desolate state, to be one of the most illustrious spots in Western Christendom, during the sixth and some following centuries; and how the abandonment of the doctrine which had thus raised it to distinction had brought it to the condition in which they now beheld it. Of its restoration to its pristine glory, the Bishop went on to say, a strong belief is entertained in the Highlands; and here, turning to one of his Clergy (the Rev. Mr. Mackenzie, of Durar), the Bishop begged him to recite some Gaelic sayings, and explain them to the congregation, which the reverend gentleman did. The Bishop then concluded in words to this effect:—"We have come, grasping the staff and occupying the seat of 'Columba of the Isles,' successors to his office and ministry. To this island we have come, as Bishop, Dean, and Clergy of the Isles, to reverence, here, at the fountain of Christianity in the West, the glory of God in His saints; and we have come humbly expecting that the same Divine power which was once so abundantly vouchsafed, may again be abundantly put forth, as in this place, and at this time, on those who are successors in the office of the glorious and mighty dead, now lying unknown and undistinguished beneath our feet, but well known, and, we hope and believe, gloriously manifest in the presence of God." The service concluded with the apostolic benediction. Besides those who accompanied the Bishop and Clergy, there was a considerable concourse of the natives of the island, who behaved throughout with much reverence and attention

A Manx Jury in a Court of Inquiry has been starved into an unanimous verdict. They had to investigate a charge against one Moore for killing Edward Craine in a street row. The inquiry was long, extending over three days; at night on the third day, when they had tasted nothing since the morning, the Jury retired. They soon returned to say they should never agree. The Deemster told them they must; and they were locked up for the night. Two had been for a verdict of "Wilful murder", and four for "Manslaughter": the two gave in. This was the verdict—"The Jury concur in indicting the prisoner for manslaughter; but this unanimity has been obtained from the painful gnawings of hunger, and not from the conviction of the minds of the jurors that it is in accordance with the principles of law as laid down by the Deemster." The Deemster only took the first sentence of the verdict, rejecting all the rest.

VALUABLE AND IMPROVED STATION ON THE MURRUMBIDGEE, KNOWN AS
"CONGWARRA,"
AND
FOUR THOUSAND SHEEP.
MR. MORT
Has received instructions to sell by public auction, at his Rooms George-street,
TO-MORROW,
At 12 o'clock,
3951 SHEEP
AND THE
STATION OF CONGWARRA.
The sheep are warranted sound, fine woolled, and consist of the following muster—
572 Ewes, from 3 to 5 years
753 Ewes, from 2 to 3 years
847 Maiden ewes
1085 Wethers, 1 to 3 years
957 Weaned lambs
87 Rams
3951
The station is distant from the township of QUEANBEYAN only twenty miles, and is capable of depasturing from 8000 TO 9000 SHEEP, in all seasons, being most luxuriantly grassed, and abundantly watered by the COTTAR AND PADDY'S RIVER, the latter running through the midst of the station.
A large outlay has been incurred in making the requisite improvements for a resident settler. These improvements include a superior cultivation and grass paddocks, stocked, &c. When the general advantages this property possesses are considered, together with its proximity to Sydney, parties looking for such an investment are recommended not to allow the opportunity to pass, as the present depression of the grazing interests cannot last long.
The sheep were shorn in October, and the wool always commands the highest market price.
Terms, half cash; half, approved bill at six months' date. 3552
